But the glory of the old days, if it be glory, was in its cheapness. We had six carfare tokens for a quarter. I paid $20 a month for table board, and it was with a great deal of hesitation that the boarding house keeper on K street broke the sad news to me that she would have to lift the price to $22 for 90 or 93 meals. In City Planners the meantime individual projects are being urged, both by Government agencies and private interests, without adequate understanding of over-all future needs. The situation will be greatly helped by the passage of Senate bill 1931, which will enlarge the commission by adding a citizen representative each from the States of Maryland and Virginia and from the District of Columbia. It prescribes procedures that will greatly enhance the commission's effectiveness, and better defines its functions and powers. The measure already has passed the Senate, and its early passage by the House merits popular support.

Two States Involved

It is an outstanding fact that the seat of the Federal Government is no longer contained within the District of Columbia and that the urgent problems of the Nation's Capital are now those of a major metropolitan area extending into the two adjacent States. Besides the obvious local needs already mentioned, certain other requirements are recognized and there is reason to expect that the Commission's recommendations to meet them will be substantially in accord with the following:

1. The limitation of Federal employment, which as the city's major industry to a great extent determines its growth, and its redistribution in the central area by the construction of new Federal buildings, in which to house the employes now in temporary or rented offices, along the central axis and on both sides of East Capitol street, and the decentralized location of activities istrative reasons, have to be in frequent contact with the Capitol and the White House.

of traffic conditions on such thoroughfares by the gradual step-bytep development of expressway characteristics thereon, as is contemplated in the K street project already begun.

6. The development of the joint thoroughfare plan for the suburbs.

7. Provision of off-street parking in the central area. 8. Provision of a new commer-
